KILROY? A man attending the dedication ceremony peers over the new sign.

Army remembers 'Little Sergeant'

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — "A few years ago I heard the Granite City Depot was going to be named after me," said Mel about it," Garaldine Price, wife of the late Rep. Mel Price, said. "He said absolutely not."

"Now I think he saved it for himself."

With all appropriate military ceremony, the Charles Melvin Price Support Center was officially dedicated Friday as about 100 soldiers in formation and 150 visitors looked on.

The Price Center was opened Aug. 1, 1942, as the Granite City Engineer Depot. Since 1971 it has been the support center for the Army Aviation Systems Command and other military personnel.

"I can't help but think how thrilled that little Army sergeant would be at the dedication today," Price said.

A new sign destined for the main building and a newly constructed sign at the main gate were unveiled simultaneously.

"I think it's great the way it turned out," said Gen. Richard E. Stephenson, commanding general, U.S. Army Aviation Systems Command.

Gen. Stephenson said,

"It is said that the greatest thing a man can do is give his life for his country," said Maj. Gen. Richard E. Stephenson, commanding general, U.S. Army Aviation Systems Command. "Mel Price did that. He paid out his life in installations."

U.S. Rep. William L. Hungate said the best way he knew to honor Price was to tell Price stories.

A PLAQUE honoring the late U.S. Rep. Mel Price is handed to his wife, Garaldine Price, by Major Gen. Richard E. Stephenson, commanding general, U.S. Army Aviation Systems Command.

"It is said that the greatest thing a man can do is give his life for his country," said Maj. Gen. Richard E. Stephenson, commanding general, U.S. Army Aviation Systems Command. "Mel Price did that. He paid out his life in installations."

U.S. Rep. William L. Hungate said the best way he knew to honor Price was to tell Price stories.

"This one's about the soldier, the enlisted man, on KP, peeling potatoes when the word he had been elected to the House came through," Hungate said. "The colonel came in his jeep to pick him up."

"Now, he had a friend, a bandleader, in St. Louis who, when he got word of the election, wired Mel: 'Oh, what a beautiful morning.' Mel wired back:

THE FLAG: As the flag is raised for the first time over the Charles Melvin Price Support Center, some salute while others reflect.

What a Difference a Day Makes."

Hungate said Price would be remembered.

"Consider what he did. Consider what he stood for, and consider the effect he had upon the times in which he lived," Hungate said.

Assistant Secretary of the Army Kenneth B. Kramer said Price's success came because he never lost sight of the fact that people are this nation's greatest asset.

"We ask you (God) to make the name of Charles Melvin Price live forever in our memories," Chaplain James Snyder prayed.

Music for the ceremony was provided by the 135th Army National Guard Band, Springfield, Mo.

Pontoon Beach plans to hold ground breaking at TIF project

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

PONTOON BEACH — Ground breaking ceremonies for the first section of Chouteau Trace I Redevelopment Project in Pontoon Beach are expected to take place this week.

A bank, a dormitory and duplex housing are planned to be built in the Tax Increment Financing project's initial phase.

A total of $1.3 million in Tax Increment bonds was sold to finance the first stage of the project. Bond counsel Lewis of Kallen, Muchin and Zavis, Chicago, officiated at the bond closing proceedings June 27 at Morgan Bank of Granite City.

At the June 28 meeting of the Village Board of Trustees, Madison County Excavating Co., Inc., 4177 Illinois 162, was awarded a contract on a low bid of $200,000 to lay water and sewer lines and perform other infrastructure work for the first section at the Chouteau Trace I site.

Other bidders were C.P. Peters Construction Co. and Kandiyohi Contracting and Guiding Co., both of Granite City, and RCS Construction, Wood River.

Bids were opened initially on May 31 and were turned over to the Tax Increment Financing Commission, which referred the bids to the engineering firm of James E. Stuart & Associates for review. At their June 7 meeting, the commissioners agreed to defer action on the bids until after the bond closing date.

The TIF Commission did not act on the bids earlier because the bonds had not been sold at that time, Trustee Carl Hackney, chairman, said.

"The Commission chairman reported at the June 28 meeting:

"The bonds were sold yesterday and we accepted the bids and could have awarded the contracts. But the attorney advised us as a safety factor to bring it back to the board for approval," Hackney said.

Voting to award the construction contract were Mayor Glen Wilson and Trustees Bob Abel, Bob Vincent and Whitsell.

Voting against the measure were Trustees Allen Madison, Don Ross, Both have been outspoken critics of the TIF development proposal in its present form.

Abstaining was Trustee Carl Hackney, who is an organizer of the Chouteau Trace I project and will serve as a director when the bank is constructed in the Chouteau Trace I TIF development area.

At a recessed meeting on Sunday, June 26, the Village Board approved an amendment to the estimated redevelopment cost ordinance, raising the total amount to $580,000 from $380,000 for purchases of property, public works, water and sewer easements and all infrastructure work on the 68-acre Chouteau Trace I project.

The trustees also authorized the $380,000 to be paid from the Tax Increment bond money.

A total of 14.61 acres of the 68-acre tract was conveyed to the village by the property owner, B.T.L. Enterprises. Under a previous agreement, only nine acres was set aside for highway ownership, Village Clerk Mary Warren said.

The land now owned by the village includes two-thirds of the frontage on Illinois 111 (two lots), 2.45 acres of public parkland, and all streets and sewer and water easements, Warren said.

Prior to the action, the trustees reviewed a plan of the property and heard project developer Stan Lucas explain that property located back from the highway will be leased for the proposed shopping center.

Also at the June 26 session, Attorney Keith Jensen reported he was preparing a supplemental contract in which B.T.L. Enterprises Inc. and Lucas, a B.T.L. officer, agree to release with five years a condition of $100,000 in funds for improvement of Engineers Road.

A section of the road runs north-south from near Interstate 270 into the redevelopment area to Chouteau Trace Parkway, which exits on Illinois 111 where the new bank will be constructed.

The contract will further state that Lucas guarantees the sale of his bonds by B.T.L. or himself personally for the road improvement. A $50,000 default clause, with such default funds to be paid to the Illinois Improvement Finance District, also will be included in the contract, officials said.

Joshua still goes to visit the dog," she said.

"You have to be friends with pit bulls. They are not mean. Pit bulls protect what is theirs. You've got to influence them to do something."

Pepworth said she likes all animals, "even snakes and lizards." She is allowed to keep them where she lives. She said "going after pit bulls" was unfair, adding that officials next might go after her dog, Big Dog.

"There are all kinds of animals that can bite and maul people — why come down on dogs? I had a Siamese cat that used to bite, I mean it bit me. It was my fault, though."

"I used to dress it up in my costume. We're all kinds of animals that can bite and maul people — why come down on dogs? I had a Siamese cat that used to bite, I mean it bit me. It was my fault, though."

Police seek armed intruder under bed, find alleged cocaine, $23,848 in socks

GRANITE CITY — A clear plastic bag allegedly containing cocaine was found in an Edwardsville man's motel room here — was "all right," he reportedly told police, because it was "for personal use. I don't sell the stuff."

Tony D. Welch, 28, 19 Sand Road, Edwardsville, was arrested at 4:44 p.m. June 29 at the Illini Motel, 1100 Niedringhaus Ave., and later charged with possession of a controlled substance (cocaine).

During the arrest, police took $23,848 cash, most of it stored in socks, into evidence.

Welch reportedly asked police, who were at the Illini Motel investigating the unreported burglary of a 44-year-old pistol, from another room for assistance. He needed assistance, Welch said, because there was a man with a gun under the bed in his room.

Welch is said to have taken police inside the room. Inside, he reportedly dropped to the floor and began to undress, and tried to lift a bed which had a clearance above the floor of approximately four inches. The bed was occupied by a partly-clothed woman.

When police questioned the woman, she reportedly produced the bag and said it was quoted as saying it was his. (See BUST, Page 8A)

'Biting' pit bull law draws yelps

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Not everyone agrees with the pit bull restrictions ordinance that will be approved by the City Council unanimously approved Tuesday.

"It's the owners that teach the dog to be mean," said Susan Morgan, 33, 11 Jones Park, Peoria. "A dog that is not well-behaved."

Morgan said she doesn't own a pit bull now, but did for seven years and has known a lot more since they were puppies.

"I could bring in a dog today who'll just yell, 'Go and love you and I'm just as kind as you can imagine,'" she said.

"If the City Council wants a ban, why not ban all dogs? You can walk down any alley in the city and dogs will come up and bark at you. That doesn't mean they are mean."

Morgan said the restrictions would put a financial burden on good owners, who may move to another city.

"Such a burden might be great enough to 'force them to give away their dog really love,'" she said.

"I want to stand up for pit bulls. This doesn't mean I want to stand up for owners who teach them to be mean. But the good owners should not be punished because of bad owners."

Pepworth, 24, 2803 Kirkpatrick Homes, said her four-year-old son, Joshua Eckert, has grown up with a four-year-old pit bull named Socko.

"They were raised together until we moved 18 months ago.

Constitutional exhibit on display at Old Courthouse

As part of the continuing celebration of the bicentennial of the Constitution, the National Park Service will display the exhibit "It's Done! We Have Become A Nation," in the northwest gallery, Old Courthouse, 11 North St., St. Louis, now through Sept. 12.

The exhibit commemorates the events that led to the creation of the U.S. Constitution and contains information about the development of the three separate branches of the federal government. Also included is material on the ratification of the Bill of Rights. The Old Courthouse was built in the early 19th century when St. Louis was the gateway to the West. Pioneers passing through here were carried not only their possessions, but their democratic beliefs into the new land.

The Old Courthouse is symbolic of those beliefs and is evidence of the constitutional principles in action, even on the edge of the frontier, a spokesman said.

The historic building is now part of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial.

Simon delays big pact for postal study

By Edward T. Hearn
P-R Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The Senate has effectively postponed a long-term contract, with an estimated worth in the millions, between the U.S. Postal Service and Texas billion-dollar firm Perot Systems Corp.

The Senate late June 22 approved a Simon-sponsored amendment that requires the General Accounting Office to investigate the service contract and issue a report to Congress within 45 days. Simon spokesman David Carle said June 24.

Perot's new company, Perot Systems Corp., signed the proposed service contract in May in an arrangement that could net the firm as much as $100 million annually over the next five years.

Under the contract, Perot's firm is being paid up to $500,000 to study five areas of postal service operations and recommend cost savings. Carle said, adding Simon supported that part of the plan.

However, the senator objected to the second part, which requires the Postal Service to hire Perot's firm to carry out the cost-savings measures, Carle said.

Simon said it was "the most unusual contract I had ever seen." He said it was a contract within the law but violated the Postal Service's own guidelines on procurement.

Perot, based in Dallas, was under contract to the company.

Postal Service spokesman Bob Hoobing confirmed the terms of the contract.

"Anything Mr. Perot proposes, if it's done, will be done by us," Hoobing said. He said that Perot's firm is also entitled to a percentage of the total savings by the Postal Service.

The percentage has not been determined, Hoobing said.

Society urges animal safety on July 4th

The Madison County Humane Society is suggesting that pet owners take extra precautions to safeguard their animals during the holiday. Pets should be secured safely inside the house or garage before the family sets out to watch an evening's fireworks display.

Owners of particularly nervous pets may want to talk to their veterinarian about tranquilizing the animal during the holiday festivities, the MCHS said.

Pets should not be tied up outside. In an effort to escape from the noise, pets will often break away. They have often been cases of dogs trying to fling themselves through car windows in an attempt to get away from the noise.

Animals should never be allowed to roam free, especially on the Fourth of July, the MCHS said. Holiday pranksters often use pets as their targets, and an animal may run into traffic in an attempt to escape.

Summer craft show today; fireworks at 9 p.m. Monday

browse through the ice rink and look over the crafts," a park spokesman said.

Among the items to be displayed in the show are:

Doll watercolor and painted items; children's items; quilt blocks; quilt kits; personalized sweaters; oil paintings; country collars; picture frames; bread cloths; country style dolls and baby supplies.

"Most animals, if provoked, will bite."

Mayor Von Dee Cruse said his office has gotten "a couple of calls" about pit bulls; but that he thinks the ordinance is a good one.

He said there have been several incidents involving pit bulls in the city and that, it seems, there are more pit bulls in the city than before.

"There are good ones, but I wouldn't want one," Cruse said. "It's true that what gets in the paper is the bad, not the good, but the pit bulls have gotten national attention and that kind of scares me."

"There will be a national press and it wasn't because they were kind and good and man's best friend. I'm sure some are good pets, but I'd be nervous around them."

Local connection helps make Browns winners at all levels

By Carl Jacobs

Staff writer

They're called the St. Louis Browns. But an exact locale for the team seems inappropriate.

The select team of 15-year-olds, sponsored by Bob Brockland Pontiac/GMC of Fairmont City and by donations of more than $10,000 from companies featuring kids from all over Missouri and Illinois.

Jeff Thompson and Dan Partney of Granite City are among those who run Browns baseball.

The Browns will travel to at least three different states by the end of their 60-game schedule this summer and possibly a fourth this fall, questing for the Continental Amateur Baseball Association World Series.

The idea for the team came as a result of a meeting between four fathers — Brad Cason, Rob Horner, Tom Sinak and Burl Cason. Since that meeting, players were recruited, uniforms were ordered, a schedule was set and coaching staff selected.

With the haste there was no waste. The Browns won 12 of their first 17 games and have played for tournament championship in Kansas City.

The team becomes more impressive considering the Browns play in a Junior I Division in Ballwin, Mo. — a league in which opponents are two years older than the Junior I and II Division in Kirkwood, Mo., a league where foes are up to two years their elders.

"That's the thing we stressed to our parents on this team," said Brockland. "We wanted to play against older players locally and then drop down and play kids our age in out-of-town tournaments."

The strategy has worked so far with a little twist. In the Kansas City tournament June 10-12, the Browns didn't drop down to their age group. Instead, they stayed to face off against 16- and 17-year-olds and still managed to reach the finals. In the title game, they lost to the St. Louis Flames, a team which won the 15-year-old Continental Amateur Baseball Association World Series last year.

"That's our goal, to compete in the World Series," Brockland said.

That's the team's long-term goal. Right now, they just want to continue to mesh and get better as the year goes on. The Browns had a chance to play against teams on their own age level last weekend in Cincinnati. "They have confidence in themselves they can do the job," said Browns coach Tom Wyroszek, a former soccer and football coach at Granite City High School. "They are a talented bunch of kids."

The team started with a base of six kids and since grew to 15. Brad Cason (CBC High School), Brad Cason (Belleville East), Rob Horner (Parkway West), Tom Sinak (CBC), Brad Duncan (Fox) and Mark Schrand (Bellville Althoff) comprise the players the Browns first landed.

Then came Willie Gmerek (CBC), Brian Haberberger (CBC), Jason Scheper (CBC), Lamont Smith (Wentzville), Darond Stovall (Belleville Althoff), Thompson and Eric Westacott (Lawrence).

Mostly recruited kids that wanted to play baseball," said Browns assistant coach Jimmy Collins of East St. Louis. "We wanted kids who were going to come back the summer to better themselves in baseball for the next high school season."

With the number of games the Browns play, no individual will be a one-dimensional player.

Paddlers at home Tuesday

PADDLERS holds its first home meet of the year on Tuesday when they host Sunset Hills of Edwardsville. A meet at Montclaire (Edwardsville) on Wednesday was rained out.

Optimists rained out at Alton

The Optimists' scheduled double-header at Alton on Thursday was rained out.

No makeup date for the games has been scheduled. The Optimists, 5-6 in league play and 7-7 overall, resume action Tuesday with the Triplites will be participating. The Optimists will be playing at Roxana High School. The Optimists will host Cahokia on Wednesday in a 7:30 p.m. game at Varsity Field. That is a makeup of a game rained out June 15.

Because of holiday deadlines complete details of the Highland

Fourth of July meet in Alton

in which the Triplites will be participating will appear in Thursday's Press-Record instead of Wednesday's Journal.

The Wednesday edition will feature a complete directory of all St. Louis area golf courses.

"We won't have a set lineup," Wyrostek said. "We will be rotating players in different positions all the time. And with the talent of the team, they all can do the job."

While the Browns have an above-average pitching staff, their main weapon is their offense. The attack is led by Cason, with a .556 average and 22 RBIs. Also hitting at a nice clip are Horner (.430), Hargrave (.420, 15 RBIs) and Sink (.320, 14 RBIs and three home runs).

The pitching staff has enough lefty-righty combinations for Wyrostek to wheel and deal all year. Lefties are Cason, Stovall and Schrand. Right-handers include Gmerek, Duncan and Sheperd. Relievers are Scherzer, Hargrave and Brockland.

"They have one of the top teams in the 15-and-under divisions," said Rick Cox, coach of the St. Louis 15-and-under regional playoff coordinator.

"And the county leagues they are in now are among the toughest in the country."

Cox has sent several different Flames teams to World Championships. In 1984 his team took the 12-and-Under Division and in 1987 they won the 15-and-Under Division. Cox also took second-place finishes in 1985 and 1986. He said the Browns are a team to be reckoned with.

"They are pretty good ballclub and they are playing up a division, so they should do well in their own age group," Cox said.

Cox also said a team that plays together as much as the Browns will need talent as well as good camaraderie to be successful.

"That's one of our strong suits," Wyrostek said. "It's one of the little things that adds up to the team's success."

The Browns will play league games until July 13, when they will travel to La Crosse, Wis., for a tournament. Come Aug. 4-14, the team hopes to be participating in the World Series in Cedar Rapids, Ia.

America the beautiful sets stage in numerous videosBy Richard Zacks
New York Times Syndicate

Most of us first encountered our nation's scenic high spots while sitting in a movie theater. And some of those scenes in front of us is too tall and we can only see half the Grand Canyon.

Or Marilyn Monroe's skirt billow up over the subway grate in "The Seven Year Itch" (1955, CBS/Fox, $19.95) and we know what summer in New York City is all about. Or Jimmy Stewart saves Kim Novak from drowning near San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge in "Vertigo" (1958, MCA, $24.95). Or John Wayne leads cattle across the "Red River" (1948, CBS/Fox, $19.95) and we think we've really tasted Texas.

Welcome to America. Welcome to a semi-apple pie column celebrating films that capture the wonderful natural and man-made beauty of this gorgeous land so full of purple mountain majesty above the fruited plain!

This column will aim to capture our scenic landscape and natural cities.

Like New Orleans. A truly original city in a land full of shopping centers. "The Big Easy" (1982, HBO, $19.95). When Dennis Hopper and Ellen Barkin capture the Crescent City right down to the black vice boss in the French Quarter, the Cajun music and the narrow, hot streets.

Or San Francisco. What maniac had the unmitigated American optimism to build a city on a natural roller-coaster track? In "Bullitt" (1968, Warner, $24.98), Steve McQueen, as a hulking cop after a murderer, runs up and down these outrageously steep streets in one of the all-time great chases.

For a comedy that targets that fife-and-drum spirit, try "Born Yesterday" (1950, RCA/Columbia, $8.98). Judy Holliday, America's dumb blonde, takes a tour of the monuments to Lincoln and Jefferson and learns that it isn't right to bribe senators.

Yeah, yeah. The Big Apple wants in, too. Probably one of the most loving tributes to cityscapes ever is the opening black-and-white montage of "Manhattan" (1939, MGM/UA, $79.95) set to the music of George Gershwin.

Hey, wait a minute. What's all this urban stuff? What about the natural beauty? What about the great open spaces? The cowboy and the wild horses? No director caught them better than John Ford. He first brought cameras to Monument Valley in Utah and captured that desolate landscape with its striking 1,500-foot buttes. It is the perfect locale for John Wayne to save women from Indians in "Stagecoach" (1939, Vestron, $69.98).

Or for that magnificent vision of "Days of Heaven," (1978, Paramount, $39.95). When Richard Gere and Brooke Adams look out from that train across the Texas Panhandle, you believe that natural beauty can bring joy to even the most hopeless man.

Niagara Falls is arguably the nation's most dramatic single natural attraction. Combining it with Marilyn Monroe's undoubtedly America's most striking physical attraction — and have "Niagara" (1953, CBS/Fox, $19.98). The classic of the film yield. Joan Cotten, the hussy Monroe humiliated, racing down the river toward the falls.

AMERICAN CLASSIC: Available on video is Cary Grant and Eva Marie Saint in 'North by Northwest.'

accents and people in boats pretending to catch fish in California? "From the Redwood Forest to the -" George Lucas and Steven Spielberg used those massive redwoods to film one of the greatest special-effects scenes in "Return of the Jedi" (1983, CBS/shire. How can we forget California? "From the redwood forest to the -" George Lucas and Steven Spielberg used those massive redwoods to film one of the greatest special-effects scenes in "Return of the Jedi" (1983, CBS/Fox, $29.95). Remember when those airplane go-carts zip along the massive trees?

Probably the most memorable and dramatic of "American landmark" scenes is the climax of "North by Northwest" (1959, MGM/UA, $24.95), where Cary Grant and Eva Marie Saint are chased across the carved peaks on Mount Rushmore.

Two final choices. For urban Americana: there's "Nashville" (1975, Paramount, $79.95). To me, no city can match the mix and mix of national personality. Not entirely Southern, not Northern; not rednecks, not hippie.

Finally, for American vastness, look no further than "Vertigo" (1957, Warner, $30.98) in which Robert Redford plays a mountain man who goes to the Rockies to escape boorish society. It was shot on location among big redwood landscapes in Utah, a highly underrated scene wonderland.

BEST BETS: "Wall Street" (1987, CBS/Fox, $89.98). Tale of greed with Michael Douglas brilliant as Ivan Boesky. "Return of the Jedi" (1983, CBS/Fox, $79.95). Mastroianni stars as a charming Italian chasing a mysterious Russian woman in this Euro tragi-comedy.

"Jack Nicklaus and Golf's Greatest" (1987, CBS/Fox, $49.98). The Golden Bear picks his favorite links.

Hoskins: Lucky encounter led to successful career in actingBy Harry Hamm
Staff affiliate

British actor and Oscar nominee from 1986 for the film "Monty Python's Life of Brian" remained a movie star for only one year since his first film, in 1973, "The National Health."

He has performed with the prestigious Royal Court Theater in London and The National Theater and is hailed as one of the best actors to come out of England in the last two decades.

All of this success, says Hoskins, is a fortuitous accident.

"It all began when I was 25," explains the 46-year-old native of north London. "I was in a bar waiting for some friends. A guy came in to make a call and said, 'You're next.' Well, I just downed a few so I said what the heck next for what? So we went upstairs and they gave me two pages of script to read for a lead in a movie I'd never got it."

"After the first performance, an agent who was there rang me up and said I should take acting up professionally. So with him holding my hand, I did it and got everything I tried for and I've never been out of work since."

Hoskins, who is best known on this side of the Atlantic for his work in movies like "The Long Good Friday" (1983), "The Cotton Club" (1984), "Monty Python's Life of Brian" (1981), "Sweet Liberty" (1986) and "A Prayer for the Dying" (1987), can be seen playing Detective Eddie Valiant in the new Disney/Touchstone Pictures hit "Who Framed Roger Rabbit."

The motion picture was an enormous gamble since it is a one-of-a-kind effort that mixes animation with live action to a degree that has never been tried before. But this time around, the film project represented an entirely new genre and a serious challenge, with little guarantee of success. But that did not deter Hoskins when he was offered the key role in the film.

"There was no question in my mind about doing it," Hoskins says. "The project had a plus: meeting, as it were, to it that appealed to me."

"The key to doing it well, I felt, was learning how to handle some for some friend. You can't do that and said, 'You're next.' Well, I just downed a few so I said what the heck next for what? So we went upstairs and they gave me two pages of script to read for a lead in a movie I'd never got it."

"The only problem was, I lost control of it. After an illuminating month, it started to crop up when I wanted to. For instance, we could be sitting here having a conversation over dinner when all of a sudden I would see a weird pop up and do some very rude things in the soup."

"The only problem was, I lost control of it. After an illuminating month, it started to crop up when I wanted to. For instance, we could be sitting here having a conversation over dinner when all of a sudden I would see a weird pop up and do some very rude things in the soup."

"I'm working too much right now," he says. "I've got to get out of a rut. I've been gone from home so long my kids are starting to call me uncle."

BOB HOSKINS plays a private detective in "Who Framed Roger Rabbit."

VP Fair to offer hungry crowd foreign, domestic yummies

By Bill Hester

Staff attorney

Tastefest and the International Village will highlight food activities at this year's VP Fair.

Eight restaurants will be participating in Tastefest, which was introduced the first time at the fair last year.

"Tastefest is a spinoff of the Chicago Tastefest, a part of the Chicagoogest, which was very successful," VP Fair spokeswoman Schuster said. "It is a chance to highlight some of St. Louis' best restaurants."

"For little family owned and operated places, it's a great advertising tool. One year, the fair can be great exposure and publicity. Where else could a restaurant get the exposure of two to three million people for free?"

Nineteen restaurants participated in last year's Tastefest. Schuster had hoped for at least that number this year. It took more planning, however, long before the recent drought, many restaurant owners were fearful of rain, which virtually ruined last year's Tastefest.

"I think we're taking a risk here," Schuster said. "Last year, the rain really affected the restaurants. Before the rain hit, the Tastefest was going real well. It could be a problem, but I don't know if we're going to have to worry about it." Rain like we got last year."

Schuster said she is pleased with the diversity of participants this year. The fair will include Italian, Mexican, Philippine, Greek, Indian, cajun and barbecue.

"So far, we said that she had hoped there would be Jamaican and Oriental restaurants as well."

"We had a lot of interest," Schuster said. "But some that were interested did not have the nerve to come forward."

One restaurant that is participating is El Greco, a small family-owned Mexican restaurant in south St. Louis that opened 2½ years ago.

"It sounded exciting and something that would be a little different," El Greco owner Mary Mendoza said. "We already have a good regular customer base that is very loyal. But this might help get our name out into the public."

El Greco will be serving tacos, fajitas and chips and salsa at the fair.

"We will be cooking all day at the fair," Mendoza said. "Varieties such as, we'll make it a specialty dish. We also have no idea on the number of people that will be coming to our booth. It's a guessing game and I hope we guess correctly."

One reason that Mendoza decided to join the Tastefest was because El Greco was not going to be open during the fair any way. It was scheduled to be closed for vacation.

"If we hadn't planned for vacation at this time, we probably would not have been able to do it," Mendoza said.

The food court restaurants to feature items of their most popular food items and for the selections to be quick to prepare and eat. Finger foods are encouraged.

Restaurants participating at this year's Tastefest and their samplings are: El Sarape (tamales, tacos, caritas); Manila Cafe ("pork shishkebab, beef and chicken sandwich, shrimp egg roll); Majestic Gyros (gyro on pita bread, baklava); Mr. Keith's (toasted ravioli, fancy barbecue sandwich, macaroni and cheese); Shalimar Garden (beef tikka kebab, chicken tikka, kebab, beef, chicken and vegetable roll-ups, samosas); El Gran (fajitas, burritos, beans, rice); Bistro - Bye Bye Cafe (barbecued pork steak sandwich, steak sandwich, barbecued salisbury and Olive Garden (Italian sausage, fried mozzarella sticks, fried zucchini sticks, bread sticks).

Schuster feels the Tastefest has an ideal location this year.

"It is directly north of the overlook stage," she said. "That is the place where we will be."

Last year, the Tastefest was in the south triangle.

The International Village always has been one of the most popular parts of the fair. Interesting items available from the 20 booths include: cevap sandwich; peroshki; siopao; pilipit; chicken inihaw; lumpia and Greek pastries.

There also will be national chains that will be serving some of their specialties: Steak and Shake; Dairy Queen; Domino's Pizza; Maggio's Pizza and Rax.

Of course, there also will be the standbys, such as hot dogs, bratwurst, pork steak sandwiches and chicken breast sandwiches.

Schuster said that on day one the food court will be prepared to serve 60,000 hot dogs, 60,000 brats and 650,000 cups of soda and beer.

Caretaker most important aspect of day-care center

When you visit a day-care center, ask to evaluate its situation. The first thing you may notice is the room, toys, pretty pictures or other aspects of the physical setting. But that are not the most important things to look at. Look first at the adults caring for the children.

The caretakers are the most important aspect of child care. Observe how the staff interact with the children they supervise. Are they immediately responsive to the children, or must the children demand attention by being loud and crying? Listen to the children and not just to each other?

Ask about the turnover at the center. Ask each caretaker for his or her date of birth on the job. Consistency of care is very important for young children. Preschool children need to develop a comfortable and trusting relationship with their caretaker.

If the center is constantly hiring new staff members, this will not be possible. So eliminate from consideration any center with an extremely high turnover rate.

Observe how the staff direct the play of the children. Do they simply ignore or are they channeling the children into positive play experiences?

Do the caretakers seem to have a lot of energy? Care for young children requires a great deal of physical energy, not everyone is suited for that type of work.

Trust your gut instinct about the atmosphere in the center. Is it happy and healthy? You can determine this all day. If it seems depressing to you, don't think about leaving your child there.

It is important that you feel comfortable talking to the caretakers. They should be willing to share details about the child's day with parents and open to any information the parent wants to share with them.

Bi-State Transit honored for safety

The Bi-State Transit System is one of five transit systems from the U.S. and Canada serving urban populations of one million or more which were Silver Award finalists in the American Public Transit Association's annual safety award competition for transit in 1987. It was just announced.

The Silver Award, the highest given, is presented each year to the U.S. and Canadian transit systems with the best overall safety record during the year.

Beating out Bi-State for the Silver Award was the Toronto (Canada) Transit Commission.

Other finalists were Metropolitan Suburban Bus Authority, East Meadow, N.Y.; metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority and Southern California Rapid Transit District, Los Angeles.

There are about 900 APTA members.

Bi-State achieved its safest year ever in 1987, according to Executive Director R. Raleigh D'Adamo. "The vehicle accident rate was the lowest on record," D'Adamo said, "and the rate of passenger accidents declined the lowest previous year."

"Also, we lost only half as much time in our workplaces due to injuries as the national average," he said.

Bi-State's rate of vehicular accidents was 3.17 per 100,000 miles; for passenger accidents, it was 1.02 accidents involving a passenger injury per 100,000 miles traveled. The national rate due to injuries is 4.51 injuries per 200,000 man hours.

The two safety awards presented to Bi-State in May by the Safety Council of Greater St. Louis.
